

The Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw)

First-hand expertise on Central, East and Southeast Europe

For more than thirty years, The Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw) has been a leading source of timely, in-depth information and unbiased analysis of the economies in Central, East and Southeast Europe. With 16 staff economists, who together are fluent in almost a dozen Central and Eastern European languages, wiiw keeps constant watch of the shifting process of changes in the transition countries, helping clients assess emerging economic trends and prospects, search for new business opportunities and reduce uncertainty in entering these increasingly important emerging markets.

As a backbone for its core research, wiiw maintains and regularly updates four principal databases – Annual, Monthly, Industry and Foreign Direct Investment – that are among the best available. Now containing roughly 22,000 time series, the databases are prepared with a seasoned understanding of their sources and limits, integrated to be consistent over time and between countries and regions. Some time series go back as far as the early 1960s, two generations before the fall of Communism, often revealing trends and resources not captured by more recent research. wiiw databases are available both on CD-ROM and online via the Internet.

wiiw economists are well prepared to make sense of the enormous changes taking place in the transition countries. From years of observation and in-depth analysis of the former command economies and with intimate knowledge of the region as well as contacts and research experience unequalled in the field, they know how to interpret the steps towards stabilization and restructuring, how internal and external pressures alike affect the changing behaviour of these markets and shape their rapid integration into the world economy.

In addition to their country expertise, the wiiw staff economists specialize by area of interest, such as privatization, foreign trade and direct investment, labour markets, industry and agriculture, economic integration or specific industrial sectors. Staff and affiliate economists participate in international research networks and joint consultancies, and are available by contract also for special projects. Research results are issued in one of the Institute's series of regular publications (mostly in English) or jointly with international publishers.

wiiw has a Reference Library that is one of a small number of significant collections in this field. The repository of the institute's own research is also available to researchers' use in the library.
